You are ready to begin. Templates are used to display model and controller information that a user sees in their browser. The value of ng-include is an expression and person.html is a string value, then put the single quotation marks around it. --> homeController person.html {{person.name}} : {{person.address}} Note Always put single quotation marks around the template name with the ng-include directive, because it accepts an expression. I would like to have feedback from my blog readers. Full Example of Dynamic Template AngularJS Dynamic Templates //defining module var app = angular.module('app', []); app.controller('myController', function ($scope) { $scope.person = { name: 'Deepak Chauhan', address: 'Delhi' }; }); app.controller('homeController', function ($scope) { $scope.persons = [{ name: 'Deepak Chauhan', address: 'Delhi' }, { name: 'Shailendra Chauhan', address: 'Noida' }, { name: 'Kuldeep Chauhan', address: 'Gurgaon' }] }); AngularJS : Dynamic Templates myController angularjs - Model module]> NGForm Text.html The static model above is possible as an HTML page within the Templates folder of your app as: person.html {{person.name}} : {{person.address}} A dynamic template can be rendered using the NG-include directive. This ended up improving my productivity and starting to experiment experiment experiment Angular feature as quickly as possible. This article represents an example of sublime text editor snippet code for an AngularJS-Bootstrap module template that could be used to quickly create an angular application with a simplistic bootstrap module. Also, sorry for the typos. I get an Angular app with a simple bootstrap module. An Angular template can have directive, HTML markup, CSS, filters, expressions and form controls. A simple angular template

The input value is: {{ name }} Click me! Types of templates: There are two types of templates: A static template is defined using the script tag. The value of ng-include is an expression and person.html is a string value, so put single quotes around it. --> homeController A dynamic template is an html page that is compiled and rendered by Angular on demand. It must have an id attribute with a unique value and a type attribute with a text/ng-template value. That is it.
